U.S. Labor Department's MSHA Seeking New Mine Inspectors in Northeastern States

Recruiting in Syracuse Nov. 4 and 5 for Positions in N.H., N.Y., Pa. and Va.

SYRACUSE, N.Y.—The U.S. Department of Labor's Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA) is continuing its efforts to hire new mine inspectors by conducting on-site applicant screenings in Syracuse, N.Y., on Nov. 4 and 5, 2006 at the Educational Opportunity Center, 100 New St. Registration for all candidates begins at 7 a.m.

"MSHA is interested in hiring professionals who are willing to help our agency keep U.S. mines safe by preventing accidental injuries and fatalities," said Richard E. Stickler, assistant secretary for mine safety and health. "We're looking for qualified people who will continue to make safety the number one priority for the mining industry."

MSHA is the federal agency charged with inspection of mining operations nationwide for adherence to regulations designed to protect the safety and health of working miners. The agency is recruiting mine inspectors for general and electrical positions for the following MSHA locations: Manchester, N.H.; Albany and Geneva, N.Y., Warrendale and Wyomissing, Pa.; and Charlottesville, Va.

Those who are unable to pre-register for the screenings may be tested and screened as a "walk-in" candidate, subject to space availability. All persons attending the screening should bring a completed resume and photo identification. Check the MSHA Web site at www.msha.gov to confirm the status of the screenings before traveling to the site.

Applicants will be notified of test results and selected candidates will participate in a two-year formal training program. Applicants must be able to efficiently perform arduous duties. Applicants selected for positions at the GS-9 level will receive a starting salary of about $42,000 annually.
