I recently read the proposed change to the Agency's final rule on Examinations of Working Places in Metal and Nonmetal Mines that was published on Jan. 23, 2017. While I can see the advantages to a pre-shift workplace exam, examining the workplace during the shift gives the Agent a chance to observe worker's way of doing the job so that the Agent can see if it is being done safely. Perhaps I misread the proposed rule and it is just an addition to the regular exam.

Thanks.
