General Comment

But is the gas [CO<sub>2</sub>] so bad? It is no poison, and plants need it as much as we humans need our daily bread. At present it makes up a mere 0.037% of the atmosphere. Greater concentrations cause plant life to flourish-especially forests, the greatest absorbers of greenhouse gases. If the release of carbon dioxide into the atmosphere were suddenly stopped, the earth's plant life would consume that remaining in a matter of 8-11 years. After that they would curl up and die. Every living thing on earth would be doomed with them, As 95% of the world's carbon dioxide is dissolved in saline water, global warming makes the sea the principal source of emissions, leaving industry far behind. Environmental expert said , Humanity is focusing environmental efforts on the boogeyman of global warming, Anxiety over climate change is carried too far, to my mind, Anxiety easily turns to panic, forcing the world into hasty, and possibly wrong, steps, Kyoto Protocol, was ratified even before the link between global warming and the concentration of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere had been proved. The hypothesis of Anthropogenic Global Warming does not yet meet the basic scientific standards of proof needed to be accepted as a viable hypothesis, much less as accepted fact. compared Gore's film to "fiction", British judge ordered schools that show Gore's An Inconvenient Truth to include a disclaimer noting multiple errors in the film.
